1. Gemini iKey

A portable USB recorder, the iKey boasts the distinction of recording directly to iPods and other USB storage devices, in either WAV or MP3 format. No, the iKey does not have a built-in microphone, but its gold-plated RCA stereo inputs will accept a variety of line level sources, and convert those raw signals into files you can listen to pronto on your iPod. $229.99

2. Allegro Multimedia Piano Wizard

Young children and adult beginners will love Piano Wizard's colorful video game presentation of piano basics, where notes disguised as dinosaur eggs or rocket ships help guide them to key strokes on the color-coded Keystation 49-key keyboard bundled with the software.

Considering that many kids learn to run a computer before they learn to read, this could be the teaching system of the future. PC only. $199.95
